I had always considered Bobby to be a good friend but that is something that I can no longer think from today onwards. Bobby was someone I could trust with my deepest secrets though now I knew it was a mistake to do so. I first found out when a common friend of ours commented about it during our conversation when he asked whether or not I knew what Bobby was doing behind my back. When I said 'I didn't,' he showed me the messages and comments Bobby had made. I found that he had been making fun of me or calling me with disgusting names behind my back. It was such a tragedy finding out. So in the end I decided to confront Bobbie.

When I had a chance to finally meet Bobbie, I seriously questioned him whether or not he had been trash-talking me behind my back. First, he denied it and asked how I could ever think of in such a way. After showing him the text and messages as evidence, he couldn't hide any longer and finally admitted to doing and saying all those nasty things. He said he just wanted to fit in with the popular kids and to do, so he had to join them to make me a target for bullying. After that, he said he didn't really want to hurt me so he did it without my knowledge. He then mumbled a pathetic apology before running somewhere and with the dignity and respect I once had for him disappeared. To me it is painful to find out someone I trusted playing with me the entire time. It also reveals that people like Bobbie are not to be trusted and respected.
